SUNDAY LITURGY

1st Reading: Ezekiel 34:11-12, 15-17; 2nd Reading: 1 Corinthians 15:20-26, 28; Gospel: Matthew 25:31-46

Theme: A Judge Who Saves

Both the first reading and the gospel speak of separating sheep from goats. It is distinction used by God who uses only one criterion: how we love others. Our lives are successes or failures on the basis of what we have done to alleviate hunger, thirst, exile, nakedness, disease, prison. Jesus tells us that our religion is summed up in the diligence and zeal with which we fight against these situations. To drive this truth home even more, he uses the image of the final judgement. Not to show us what will happen at the end of the world, but to teach us what should really count in our lives.

Response to the Psalm: The Lord is my shepherd; there is nothing I shall want.

Gospel Acclamation: Alleluia, alleluia!

Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord! Blessed is the coming of our father David!
Alleluia!
